ABSTRACT

This report describes the operation of the Higher Education Opportunity Program (HEOP) of New York State which is designed to support the screening, testing, counseling, tutoring, and teaching of New York State students who have attained a high school diplima or a New York State high school equivalency diploma, have the potential for the successful completion of a higher education program, and are both economically and educationally disadvantaged. This report discusses past and current efforts of the Program, the communications process with other agencies, the research effort, publications, and plans for the future. The remainder of the report is devoted to summary sheets of programs approved by December 1969; allocations to colleges, 1969-70; allocations to colleges for student stipends; programs funded 1969-70, and the institutions participating in the various consortia, 1969-70. SUBJECT: Report on the Higher Education Opportunity Program

Enclosed is a copy of a brief interim report compiled by the staff of the Higher Education Opportunity Program. Included are statistical breakdowns for financial allocations to public and private institutions of higher education, student enrollment in H. E. O. P. programs, and the amounts provided for student stipends (books, room, board, and transportation). These charts clearly indicate how the Department has carried out the mandate stipulated in the enabling legislation of 1969 (Chapter 1077, Article 130 of the Education Law).

The response to our booklet, "Making the College/Career Scene," has been overwhelmingly favorable. Additional copies are on hand if you wish to make them available to your constituency.

Faithfully yours,

Ewald B. Nyquist

HIGHER EDUCATION OPPORTUNITY PROGRAM

In May 1969, the New York State Legislature and the Governor authorized $5,000,000 for a program of expanding higher educational opportunity in public and non-public institutions of higher education. This program is designed to support the screening, testing, counseling, tutoring, and teaching of New York State students who have attained a high school diploma or a New York State high school equivalency diploma, have the potential for the successful completion of a higher education program, and are economically and educationally "disadvantaged." Eligible students may be from rural or urban areas and may be from any racial or ethnic background.

OPERATIONS PROCESS

Past Efforts

Guidelines were written utilizing the recommendations of State Education Department personnel as well as outside consultants. A panel of educators from all sectors of higher education opportunity programs was then convened to assist in the further refinement of the document. The final product was distributed to all public and private institutions in New York State.

The Higher Education Opportunity Program office encouraged the submission of applications from institutions operating as consortia; because of the Department's unique position of working both with public and private institutions of higher education, some of these consortia included institutions from both sectors of higher education so that efforts could be made on regional bases rather than a series of smaller and possibly less effective individual projects.

For the fiscal year 1969-1970, applications totaling $15,962,796.76 were received from approximately ninety institutions and consortia. The reading process included evaluations by Department staff--both within and outside Higher Education--and by a group of consultants with a high level of expertise in the field of higher educational opportunity recruited from many parts of the United States. Final determinations were based on program efficiency and viability, and available funds; each institution was queried by phone or was invited to the Department to discuss the proposed allocation before the funding process was completed.

H.E.O.P. funds were allocated to 51 public and non-public institutions in New York State. Funding ranged from $4,500 for a program at Keuka College to over $2.4 million for CUNY's SEEK program, and permitted the enrollment of almost 5,200 new education opportunity students and supportive services for an additional 4,800 students in two and four-year colleges.

Current Efforts

The Higher Education Opportunity Program staff is currently visiting every program funded for the academic year 1969-1970. Unfortunately, the program lacks sufficient staff to operate in the necessary depth required if it is to provide effective consultation and leadership to the State as a whole. Fortunately, an outside agency is taking up part of the burden of survey and evaluation, but a minimum of two additional staff are necessary at our present level of funding.

Current efforts include not only visitations, but also:

1. Reorganization of the College Committee on Educational Opportunity, a statewide advisory group;
2. Development of new guidelines for possible funding during fiscal year 1970-1971. Requests for recommendations for the revision have been sent to project directors throughout the State, members of the College Committee on Educational Opportunity, and members of the Department staff. In this way, we hope to eliminate any problems which may currently exist in the language as well as providing the staff with feedback concerning program thrust.

In addition, the staff is assisting colleges to meet the Program's secondary objectives: coordination with other local, State, and Federally funded programs such as Urban Education, Upward Bound, Model Cities, etc.; cooperation and coordination with education programs, institutions, and agencies from pre-Kindergarten through college and continuing higher education; coordination with community service organizations and programs; inviting participation of a broad segment of the community in H.E.O.P. projects; and the development of new teaching and learning approaches which will benefit not only opportunity students but the total college community.

COMMUNICATIONS PROCESS

Channels of communication, both within and outside the Department, are constantly being examined, explored, and reinforced in a conscious effort to extend staff awareness about the multi-dimensional factors related to educating the "disadvantaged."

The flow of communication absolutely necessary as a means of both input and feedback for staff members is obtained by on-site visitation to college campuses and attendance at local, State, and national conferences. The College Committee on Educational Opportunity is another valuable communication channel to the State Education Department by providing advice and information relating to the expansion of higher educational opportunities; and also for maintaining links with educational institutions and social and ethnic organizations throughout New York State. The College Committee also serves the State Education Department by evaluating the operations of the office of Higher Education Opportunity Program and of higher educational opportunity programs through the State.

RESEARCH

H.E.O.P. is actively drawing upon the research facilities of the State Education Department which complements our on-going research component. The most recent journal articles, books, and other publications relating to educational opportunities and the "disadvantaged" are continuously being examined.

Programs funded by monies allocated under the Higher Education Opportunity Program are subject to ongoing evaluative procedures; self-evaluation and on-site visitations.

Progress reports are due periodically during the academic year and precede funding payments.

The evaluation process results not only in an accounting of the institution's progress toward educational programs which are increasingly meaningful, but it enables the Regents and the Education Department to disseminate those activities which have succeeded while making information available about those which have failed. In this way, projects in succeeding years should be measurably improved, more effective, and more efficient.

PUBLICATIONS

The Educational Opportunity Forum is published periodically by the Higher Education Opportunity Program office. This publication deals directly and frankly with all aspects of higher educational opportunities.

This year saw the birth and dissemination of a pamphlet entitled, Making the College/Career Scene. The English language version has been enthusiastically received throughout the State by all people and groups involved in guiding students into post-secondary experiences. A Spanish language version of the above is in the final stage of publication.

THE F'JTURE

In the forthcoming months, the H.E.O.P. office will continue to urge the development of programs which best meet the needs of New Yorkers who have heretofore been unable to achieve a college education. In addition, the staff will examine closely the projects funded so as to be sure that the major goal of the Program is achieved: recruiting college-capable opportunity students and doing everything possible to see that they remain and succeed in college.
